

Get It Written:

Structure and Support for Your Long-term Writing Project

with Barbara Swift Brauer, MA

The loneliness of the long-distance writer can be intense and often overwhelming. Whether undertaken for academic, professional or personal reasons, a long-term writing project requires skills and strategies beyond good writing alone.

Letting others in on the journey can lighten the load and offer encouragement during those inevitable dark hours.

Share your insights, successes, and challenges with others engaged in long-term writing projects. Weekly topics will serve as discussion points for brainstorming and problem solving:

- How to become your own writing coach
- Ways to maximize productivity and efficiency
- How to overcome the overwhelm
- Finding your true voice — and more.

We will pool resources, set goals, and think about next steps.

To register: bsbrauer@sonic.net or call (415) 488-4605

Barbara Swift Brauer, MA, is a poet, freelance writer/editor, and ghostwriter with more than 30 years in Bay Area book publishing.